About Zoe Eather

KEYNOTE SPEAKER | MC
TECHNOLOGY & CHANGE SPECIALIST

Zoe Eather helps organisations make sense of rapid change and their place within it. A civil engineer, Churchill Fellow and PhD researcher in data storytelling, she also performs stand-up comedy. That combination is not a coincidence. It is the engine behind a keynote experience that makes complexity clear, practical, and genuinely engaging.

Her signature framework, The Possible Brain, gives audiences a practical way to move from overwhelmed to empowered, rebuilding confidence and equipping people to engage with change constructively rather than defensively.

We got the bright and bubbly character that helped everyone in the room relax into the event. There were plenty of curveballs thrown her way, but Zoe took them all in her stride and was able to make adjustments on the run. I'd happily recommend Zoe as an MC and look forward to working together again in the future.

Keynotes

Change is happening whether we are involved or not. And there is enormous pressure for businesses, government, and every single one of us to follow and get involved with the tsunami of technology trends seemingly about to crash on top of us. This is overwhelming.

Focusing on technology for the sake of technology builds barriers to unlocking what is possible because it misses a fundamental piece - the humans! Technology doesn't happen by itself it's a product of the human brain, therefore it's time to put a human lens on technology trends to unpack what we actually need to know and how we create our own impact by getting involved in the future, today.
